DAILY PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

Monday Afternoon, January 27, 1834.

In the late Report of the Director of the U. S. Mint, it is stated that the total amount of Gold derived from the United States, and brought to the mint, in 1833, was $868,000

Of which Virginia furnished		104,000
N. Carolina	"	475,000
S. Carolina	"	66,000
Georgia	"	216,000
Tennessee	"	7,000

THE PRESSURE.—On Wednesday last, governor Wolf sent a Message to the House of Representatives, stating that the Messrs. Allens, of New York, who purchased the Canal Loan of last winter, from Jesse R. Burden, had failed to deposit the installments now due, and that in consequence a temporary loan of $300,000 was wanted, immediately.

This is one of the good effects of the removal of the deposits.—The loan, last winter, was taken on highly favorable terms to the State—any loan now made will be on much less advantageous conditions, if it can be had on any terms.—All this, and much more is done, in order that the National Bank may be removed from "humble Pennsylvania" to the "Empire State."—But, as honest Jack Downing says, "There's glory, aint that worth somethin?"

The Harrisburgh Chronicle, of the 23d instant, contains an advertisement for proposals for a loan to the state of $729,354 .44, under the act of the 16th of February, 1833.—We presume this is the amount of the deficiency of the Messrs. Allens.

MAJOR DOWNING.—We publish, to day, one of this ingenious patriot's letters, to his old friend, Mr. Dwight, of New York—our readers will find it worthy of an attentive perusal.—Those Jackson men, who go the whole animal for the "Government," will find it a very plausible explanation of the defalcation in the Post Office Department.—The Major, however, is not content with explaining the matter—he shows that these kinds of defalcations afford a happy means of getting rid of the surplus money, which gave us so much trouble a year or two ago.—Serious fears were then entertained, that the immense surplus fund, which we were to have, would be ruinous.—It was feared that the body corporate would be pampered and surfeited, and that the different members would become seditious and discontented.—The Major dispels all these gloomy apprehensions, and gives us abundant assurance that, if President Jackson and Mr. Barry are kept in power, we will have no contention about surplus funds.—We must not, however, give the Major more credit than is justly due to him—he was not the first to discover that we were in a fair way to get rid of this terrible bone of contention.—Mr. Taney announced, more than seven weeks ago, that additional duties would have to be laid, in two years, to meet the necessary expenses of the Government.

Major Downing's, or Mr. Barry's plan, for keeping down the surplus fund is, certainly, a very excellent one; and its chief excellency consists in the circumstance that its power may be increased as necessity requires.—For instance, in Virginia, where the contract price, with Thomas Carberry, for carrying the mail, was $600—the extra allowance was $3,250.—Now, if the revenue should become too powerful and large, it will only be necessary to double, or treble, or quadruple the extra allowances.—In this way the new check, to the increase of surplus revenue, is as powerful as the Malthusian checks to the increase of population.

The Major, however, as if to "make assurance doubly sure," relies greatly upon the aid of the pet banks, the contingent drafts, the transfer drafts, and treasury warrants—and has the word of his friend Zekel Bigelow that he could transfer and contingent away the whole of the deposits in three days, and the people be none the wiser.

Upon the whole, every true friend of 'the government' must be gratified to find that there is now one danger less before us than there was during the administration of that short sighted man John Q. Adams. He, foolish man, having no fear of a surplus revenue before his eyes, but, wickedly and of malice aforethought, intending to enrich the nation, adopted a most pernicious scheme of government, and would not permit that wholesome waste of money which has been so happily invented by Mr. Barry, and which is so admirably calculated to prevent a surfeit in the body politic.

Wonderful discovery! more wonderful man!—Alchymists have labored for ages to discover a mode of converting dross into gold—Mr. Barry, in a few short years, has discovered a still more valuable process—that of converting gold into dross—and thus preventing the accumulation of surplus funds.—A full history of the course of experiments, by which he arrived at this discovery, would be invaluable, and worthy the pen of Major Downing.

Extract of a letter, dated

"HARRISBURG, January 23, 1834.

"You will see, by the papers from this place, that the loan has failed; and we have passed a bill, to day, authorizing a temporary loan of $300,000. When Mr. Keating predicted this result, a few days since, his fears were treated with mirth, and he was denounced as an "alarmist"—but when the Governor's Message was read, yesterday, the tune was changed; the scene was altered; a clap of thunder in January could not have been more unexpected by some of our whole hog men, than the intelligence; altho' they had been told that it would come to this in the end."

ADJOURNED

Public Meeting.

An adjourned Meeting of the citizens of Pittsburgh and Allegheny county, convened at the Court House on Saturday the 25th of January, and was re-organized by the Chairman and Secretaries of the former, Meeting taking their places.

The committee appointed at the Meeting held on the 21st inst. reported the following resolutions. And on motion, they were unanimously adopted.

RESOLVED, That in the opinion of this Meeting, the formation of a New County, out of parts of the county of Allegheny, Westmoreland, Fayette, and Washington, would be a measure unnecessary and inexpedient—uncalled for by the wishes of a large majority of the citizens of those counties, and beneficial only to the few, who hold property in the village, sought to be erected into a seat of justice.

RESOLVED, That the Bill now pending before the Legislature, for the formation of a New County, to be called "Carroll;" and thereby to diminish the population, and curtail the limits of the County of Allegheny, which is already sufficiently contracted, merits the decided disapprobation of this Meeting; and that our Members of the Legislature, be requested to use all honorable means, to prevent the passage of said Bill.

RESOLVED, That this Meeting has heard of the existence of no reasons for the erection of the proposed New County, other than those, which have heretofore been amply and repeatedly refuted; and that the decisions of former Legislatures, in uniformly rejecting all applications for such New County, ought not now to be lightly disregarded.

On motion of W. W. Fetterman, Esq.

RESOLVED, That the erection of a new county, offers no greater benefits than the appointment of a few additional county officers; an increase of taxes and to give employment to a few more Justices, Constables and Lawyers.

On motion of R. Burke, Esq.

RESOLVED, That the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the Chairman and Secretaries, and published in all the papers of the city; and that copies of said proceedings be transmitted to the Speakers of the Senate, and House of Representatives, and to the gentlemen who represent this city and county, in those Honorable bodies.

It was then stated by the Committee, that they did not deem it necessary to prepare a Memorial to the Legislature, remonstrating against the project for a New County:—That on previous and similar occasions, strong remonstrances to the measure, signed by thousands of our citizens, had been forwarded to Harrisburg:—And it was presumed, that our present Members would refer to them as furnishing the best and strongest proof that the measure is uncalled for, unnecessary, and that it would be injurious and prejudicial to the interests of all the Counties called upon to contribute the portions of territory which are to compose it.

Therefore, on motion, the Meeting adjourned.

MAJOR DOWNING'S CORRESPONDENCE.

To my old friend Mr. Dwight of the New York Daily Advertiser.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16, 1834.

You remember I telled you a spell ago, that after we got the message done, we was obliged to take it all to bits, and nock out a good many things about the counts, and run the chance of lettin Congress skip 'em over; and I telled you too, that I would to rights git the Gineral's specks, and give 'em a twist round to a plain sight, and let him take a look at things jest as they be, without a bit of "Glory" about 'em. Well among them accounts we had got in the Message, was the Post Office accounts. I did'nt like the look on 'em a bit at the time, but as every body said money was plagy scarce everywhere, the Gineral thought it was natural enuf to find it pretty scarce in the Post Office too. Now, says I, Gineral, my notion is that we best let Major Barry tell his own story about it; for as he has done so much in reforming things, and we have got now a pretty good majority in Congress, he may git out of the scrape.

Well the Gineral thought that was about the best way; and Major Barry made his report, and telled a pretty considerable of a cute story about his havin found an error in the Post Office accounts, that have been overlooked ever since Gineral Washington's time. I began to think for a spell that would stump Congress, about as much as tho' there had been a fire in the Post Office, pretty much like that one in the Treasury last spring. But, some how or other, some of the plagy Senators have been smellin round, and got on a track that led'em right up to the fact, that the Post Office is head and ears all over in debt; and that it has been borrowin money for over two years now, and never said a word on it to Congress. And I am peskily afeard, that seein the Law says that none of our folks shall borrow money without the consent of Congress, (and which, upon the hull, is a pretty safe law, for Congress could'nt tell otherwise how the money was goin,) I am, I say, peskily afeard we can get the Post Office folks out of this scrape, without reformin some on'em out of office. But as they are all our best friends, and have done more for Glory and Reform than most folks, we shall let some on'em resign, and then apint 'em to some office abroad or git 'em into some place where they can git a liven without workin for it; for the Gineral wont let any on' em suffer no way.

When the Gineral come to hear what the Senate was arter, says he, Major, will them accounts of the Post Office stand the racket, or not? Why, says I, Gineral its hard tellin; but as nigh as I can calklate, says I, I guess they won't in the way Congress settles accounts—things look plagy crooked, says I; and the worst on't is, them accounts have been so twisted, first one way, and then again another way, that I am afeared now they wont stand twisten any more. The ony way, says I, is to straiten em, and that's all I can do about em. But, says I, if they break to bits in straitenin on em, I can't help it. Well, says he, Major, I wish you'd try it: for, says the Gineral, if we can't keep Barry up, there is no tellin what will become on us, for it seems to me, ever since Mr. Van Buren got the Post Office Department into the Cabinet, we have been able to do more in "rewardin our friends, and punishin our enemies," than in all the rest of the departments put together. Well, says I, Gineral, I'll try it, says I, and so the Gineral went to bed; and I got my slate, and I got all the Post Office accounts from the time Judge M'Lean left the office and Major Barry came into it. It took me a good spell to git em all strung out in regular order; and just as I was beginin to sifer up, the Gineral he riz up in bed, and, says he, Major, I reckon I can help you along. Well, says I, Gineral, I want all the help you can give me. I'm thinkin, says he, you best say that its all owin to Biddle; for he is crampin all the people he can, and that he makes money so scarce, folks can't pay postage; and that if we had not taken the deposites away from him, things would be twice as bad now. Well, says I, Gineral, that is a good notion, and I'll see to rights how it will work among figures. I thought I'd just tell you, Major, says the Gineral, before I forgot it; for the notion jest struck me as I was going to sleep; and so the Gineral laid down, and I went siferin again.

It was most daylight afore I got through; and I finished off with the sums Major Barry says he has been borrowin, and left a blank to put in the amount he says the Post Office has overdrawn the banks where the postages are kept—for, as he don't know yet what that amount is, I can't tell myself—tho' I suppose I could, upon a pinch, make nigh upon as good a guess at it as he could, or any one else. But I thought I wouldn't guess at nothin. I never guess when I get hold of my slate—I sifer on one side, and then chalk down the sum on tother—so there can't be no mistake. When I come to figer up the hull amount, the Post Office has gone asturn since Judge M'Lean left it, I begun to bile up like one of Captain Bunker's steam kittles; and I was glad the Gineral was snorin, for I don't like to let people see me when my steam is up; but if I don't do somethin, I suppose I should blow up jist like a steam boat on the Mississippy—and so I got my axe, and down stairs I went with a light to the wood house, and split up more than three cord and a half of hickory afore I got in a good temper, and afore I tho't it was safe to go to bed—and then I went to bed, and slept like a top till breakfast time.

The next morning, when the Gineral come into the Cabinet room—well says he, Major did you finish them plagy accounts? Yes, says I Gineral I did, and split up wood enough to last us a month in the bargain. And I jest tell'd the Gineral a leetle about it to prepare him. Now, says I, Gineral, let me have your specs, says I, a minit—and I took 'em to the window, and give the screws a twist, and tried 'em, and seein every thing look'd natural, I handed 'em to the Gineral, and then he and I took the slate, and went over the figers both on us standing up by the table side by side. First, says I, there is the printin account and stationary of the Post Office, when Mr. Adams was President; and here is the account since we've ben in—here is the amount of contracts for one spell, and there is the amount for another—here is the number of offices and clarks for one spell, and there is the number for anothar—and here is the cost of wages and salarys of the Post Office when Mr. Adams was President; and here is the cost since our time—plagy deal of difference Gineral, says I, aint it? The Gineral he did'nt say nothin—he kept his eyes on the slate, and his mouth nigh upon wide open; ony once in a while he'd calklate on his fingers a spell.—And now says I, there is the sum Judge McLean left in the Post Office when he went out on't;—and there, says I, is the sum that is now wanting in the Post Office, to make things square there, to say nothin of the sum Major Barry says the Post Office has overdrawn from the Banks—and as he don't know what the amount is, I don't nother; and I don't care about guessing at it; for it's bad enuf without guessing. The Gineral put his eye upon the last line of figers (it was hard upon a million of dollars agin the office) and look'd, and blink'd, and began to close his mouth up slowly, jest for all the world like shutting up a safety valve; and he began to swell and breathe plagy hard; I see the steam was gettin up. The Gineral he look'd at me; and then I look'd at him; and then we both look'd at the slate agin. Bimeby the Gineral he opened the valve, and let off the steam, and such a whizzin you never heard in your born days. He took my slate, and was jest a going to smash it into a thousand atoms; but I got it afore it struck the floor. He then got his hickory and thrash'd round a spell with that. But that didn't do no good. So says he to rights, "Major, what is to be done about it?" Why, says I, Gineral, I don't see nothin else, says I, but to take my ax, and do as I did last night—there is a good deal of hickory wants splittin in the wood house yet. And with that I handed the Gineral my ax, and he slatted about the chamber with it for a spell; and if any of our folks had come in then, I guess they'd found more to fear than when I frightad 'em so a few days ago.

I never know'd the Gineral blow off steam so long as he did this time; and I was peskily afear'd the boiler would burst arter all. And so I went to work puttin out the fire; and the ony way was to get the specs, and screw 'em back to "Glory" agin; and as soon as I did that, we got our pipes, and sot down and talked over the matter.

Now says I, Gineral, though this is a bad business, it aint so bad as it first looks. In the first place, says I, if Major Barry had borrowed the money of Squire Biddle, Congress would have known it two years ago, and the Post Office reports wouldn't a been as slick as they have been; and we'd a had more trouble to git so many of our folks in last election. And then, agin by borrowin the money of other Banks, on interest, it made them Banks the keener to get hold of the deposits; for if Congress wouldn't pass a law to pay the mony borrow'd by our folks, to make their accounts look square, why the deposit Banks could pay themselves; and now, by gittin our mony away from Squire Biddle, who was bound by law to make a ragular report of every thing, and puttin it in other Banks, our folks can square off a good many accounts, and Congress wont know nothin on't; for it will take a pretty spry siferer to figer out all the accounts with so many new deposit Banks;—for we've got 'em now pretty well mixed up with what the Treasury calls "contingent drafts," and "transfer checks," and "Treasury warrants;" and Zekel Biglow says he could, in three days, with the power of government has got now, warrant, and transfer, and contingent away, between so many pockets, nigh upon the hull of the deposits, and nobody could never find nothin about it.

And then agin, says I, here is another thing—the people wanted "Glory," and they wanted "Reform,"—and they have had both now over five years; and if they expected it warnt a goin to cost nothin, they was mistaken. And that aint all—there was that plagy "surplus mony" business—evry body said a spell ago if somethin warnt done about it, the country would all go to smash. Well now, says I, we are gettin out of that scrape as slick as a whistle.

The Gineral he begun to brighten up—why, says he, Major, we've been in a pashin then about nothin. I remember now I tell'd the folks in my message a spell ago, that the safest place for the surplus mony was in the pocket of the people; and I believe that sayin alone brought over more than one State to our side; and if our people git the money, it's all right, aint it, Major? Yes, says I; ony some folks, I suppose, will set up a squeelin jest like the pigs when they come in a leetle too late for their corn; and say, altho' they don't belong to our party, they've got jest as good a right to a share as we have. Well, says the Gineral, there they are mistaken; for Governor Massy said (and that made him Governor too) that the corn all belonged to the pigs that got into the pen afore the gate was shut. But Major, says the Gineral, I am a little puzzled yet to know what account to charge that Post Office debt to. If we can only git that right, and save Barry, I shall sleep sound to night.—Well, says I, Gineral, there is ony one account that will stand that charge, and a good many more too, for as we go along, and Congress gits to siftin things, I suppose they'll find out somethin more. In the first place, says I, that fire in the Treasury last Spring did a good deal towards settling off a good many land accounts, and other accounts. If we don't have no more fires, or other accounts, and Congress presses us, we'll give them a lead through the new Deposit Banks, a spell, as I have just bin tellin; and if they follow us up through that track, for some of these fellows have got good noses, then w'll fetch up on the ony account I know of and that account as I said afore will stand a good many charges yet. Well what is that account Major, says the Gineral? and he got up and looked at me—last week [illegible] al was the 8th January. Now say [illegible] at day worth a little more than the 4[illegible] he Gineral gin a nod. Well then says [illegible] "Glory," aint that worth somethin? The[illegible] gin another nod—and there is "Reform," [illegible] at worth somethin? The Gineral noded agi[illegible] well now, says I, put all that together, and it [illegible] dont make a sum of debt due you, says I, that will balance a good many accounts I'm mistaken.—"New Orleans, Glory and Reform," says I debtor to the Gineral—That's enuf, says the Gineral, and that was the eend of the Post Office accounts.

Branch Bank at New York.—If the United States Bank should reach forth and crush, as it might, the whole concatenation of safety fund banks in New York, it would be called a horrid monster, exercising arbitary power to the injury of the people. If it puts forth its energies to save a tottering institution, it is said to be engaged in bribery. Thus "either way 'tis sped," with those who have nothing but the will of a single individual to guide them in their hostilities. The following extract, from the New York American, will show what the U. S. Branch Bank in New York has been doing within a day or two. We shall find a charge of corruption founded upon the act of charity.—U. S. Gaz.

"Facts stronger than Declamation.—The United States Bank and its branches are habitually spoken of in certain quarters, as seeking to apply the screws in order to oppress the community. There have been many evidences before of the falsehood of this charge. We are about to add a new one.

The Chemical Bank of this city, which keeps, perhaps, more small accounts than almost any other in the city, of persons engaged in retail business, and of mechanics, has, from some unfounded cause, been run upon for a day or two; upon learning which, the Branch Bank, this morning, made them a loan of $100,000; thus evincing, at once, their confidence in the Chemical Bank, and their desire to aid in relieving the community."

It is some consolation to know that the very friends of Mr. Van Buren, who have pressed the government to remove the deposits, now admit that they are severe sufferers by the measure, and that they are writing letters, day and night, soliciting and entreating the administration to retrace its steps. They find that although they could influence and press upon Gen. Jackson to take a wrong step, they cannot move him to do what is right, and listen to the voice of public distress. He says: "You advised me to do so, and must not prove to the nation that I am incapable of administering the government.—N. Y. Star.

Lake Disaster.—A small schooner, the Maria of Portland Harbor; Higby, master, left that port on Thursday last for Buffalo, laden with leather, shoes, provisions, &c. for A. Rumsey. Soon after leaving port a severe gale came on when she made the port of Dunkirk; but anchoring too far out in the channel she parted her cable and drifted ashore where she now lies bottom side up. A hole has been cut through her bottom and the cargo found to be much damaged and some of it missing. It was fortunate that she was able to enter the harbor, as the night was so tempestuous and stormy, that it is thought the vessel and crew must otherwise have been lost.—Fredonia Censor.

In this town, Wheat is 85 cents; Rye 56; Corn 50 cents.

In Muncy and Hughesville, the price of Wheat is 75 cents per bushel; Rye 56; Corn 50; Oats 31.

In Reading, Wheat is 90 cents—Pottsville 105 and Philadelphia 103. By a reference to our file, we find that this time last year, wheat was $1 15 and $1 18 in Philadelphia. The reader may draw his own conclusion.

United States Bank.—It is a fact, not generally known, that this Institution paid the Government $1,500,000 as a bonus for her charter—and one condition was that the Public Deposits were to be confined to her vaults. Is it fair, honorable, or consistent with the policy of the Government, to violate any part of this contract, after so sound a price has been paid for the consideration? Let it also be understood, that the late renewed charter of this Institution, which the President vetoed, proposed paying the government of the United States $3,000,000 for the same consideration. Let us ask, what has party to do with these things, when they all tend to the general benefit of the whole community.—Miltonian.

Messrs. M'Kee, Clarke & Co. have favored us with a New Orleans Prices Current, of the 6th instant, from which we make the following extract.

"We remarked, in our last few numbers, that the weather had been excessively bad; no change for the better has occurred, and the cold, during the night of the 3d inst., and up to the present moment, has exceeded any thing ever experienced in this city. The ground is covered with snow about three inches deep, and the whole is frozen to the consistency of ice; several "sleighs" have been plying through the city, and yesterday "skaters" were making feeble attempts to display their address on such puddles as offered a surface of smooth ice of sufficient dimension to permit turning round. The suburbs present quite a northern appearance, the trees covered with snow and bending under their weight, and huge icicles pending from the eaves of the houses; the good people, natives of Louisiana, have many of them seen "Winter" clad in his hoary garments, for the first time. It is highly probable that the cane plants, or "rattoons," have been in a great degree frosted, and the planters are menaced with a misfortune that did not enter into the account of profit and loss of former years.—The Mississippi had risen about two feet, but has receded again, and is now about ten feet below high water mark."

SEC. 2. That it may be lawful to place building materials intended for immediate use on the side of the cart ways of the streets, lanes, and alleys, and on the side of the commons, but not on the footways; Provided, That such materials be placed on the side of the street, lane, alley, or commons nearest to and opposite the lot or the property of the person or persons on which it is intended to erect or repair a building, and be put up and placed in compact forms or heaps so as to produce the least possible public inconvenience; leaving the gutters free and unobstructed, and a passage for wagons of one half the width of the street, lane, or alley, exclusive of the side walk, and when on the commons, occupying a space not exceeding sixteen feet immediately outside of the side walk; Provided, also, That in case buildings are about to be built, or in the course of erection or repair, on opposite sides of any street, lane, or alley, the street commissioner shall restrict the occupancy of the street, lane, or alley, on either or both sides, so as to leave what he may deem a sufficient wagon passage; and any person who shall place any material for building on the public ground, contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, or who shall refuse or neglect to comply with the requisitions of the street commissioner in the case herein provided for, shall forfeit and pay a fine of Five Dollars; besides the expense of removing the material, (if removed by the street commissioner, or otherwise, at the public expense.) And any person who shall neglect to remove any materials or rubbish that may remain on the public ground, within two weeks after the building shall have been covered in, or, in case of repair, within forty eight hours after the repairs are made, or after the street commissioner shall have given notice for the removal thereof, shall forfeit and pay a fine of Five Dollars, besides the expense of removal, if removed by the street commissioner, or otherwise, at the public expense.

3. That any person who shall drive or cause to be driven through any of the streets, lanes, or alleys, or over any public ground of the borough, any cart, wagon, or sled, containing earth, dung, rubbish, or filth of any kind, unless such cart, wagon, or sled has a good and sufficiently tight tail board and body, so as to prevent such earth, dung, rubbish, or filth from being scattered or thrown upon any street, lane, alley, or public ground, shall forfeit and pay a fine of three dollars.

SEC. 4. That no vault shall be hereafter dug in any of the streets, lanes, alleys, or commons, without leave first being obtained from the Burgess and Council, who shall judge of the necessity and limit the dimensions of the same, and which shall, in no instance, extend beyond the curb stone, or above the grade of the side walk; and any person who shall herein offend, shall forfeit and pay a fine of Twenty Dollars, besides the expense of restoring the public ground to the condition it was in previous to making the excavation.

SEC 5. That the regulators proceed to examine any vaults, now built, on any of the public ground, and to report to the Burgess whether or no any of them project above the grade of the side walk, or beyond the line of the curb stone; and, if it appear that any do so project, it shall be the duty of the Burgess to notify the owner or owners of the property to which such vaults are attached, that the same must be reduced so as to conform with the grade and the line of the curb; and, in case the same shall not be made so to conform within three months from the time of giving notice, the Burgess shall direct the Street Commissioner to remove the same, and fill up the ground to its original height, and collect the expense incurred in so doing, from the person or persons owning such property.

BRADDOCK'S FIELD

Edgeworth Young Ladies' Seminary.

ANOTHER year, the seventh of this Institution, has terminated, under circumstances pleasing in the retrospect, and replete with successful result.

In taking leave of those young ladies whose allotted time has expired, the relation of teacher and pupil of course ceases, but feelings of kindness, and desire for friendly intercourse, with mutual prosperity, will ever exist.

Health, the first of earthly blessings, has been so extraordinary, as to make Braddock's Field proverbial as a place for its enjoyment; and the additional buildings and arrangements have given satisfaction to all. We therefore announce, with gratitude, the prosperity of the Institution, in the present public manner.

On the 18th proximo, (September) it is intended to resume the engagements of the Seminary, but with a limited number.

It is intended, that, except as vacancies occur, no more pupils shall be received the next session, than those whose names remain on the list, or who are considered as engaged. This arrangement, it is presumed, will receive the approval of our friends.

The same course of studies will be pursued as particularized in former notices—and the terms continue unaltered, viz.

Pupilage, with reference to all the English branches,	$150
Tuition in Music and Drawing,	50

No extras but washing and stationery.

CARLISLE IRON WORKS

FOR SALE.

THIS valuable property, late the estate of Michael Ege, deceased, consists of about 8,000 acres of land, including three Farms, on which are a furnace, forge, grist mill, saw mill, and rolling and slitting mill; with all necessary barns, stables, coal houses, out houses, and dwellings for families of the workmen, in the most complete and permanent state. The water power being derived, principally, from a large limestone spring, to which the stream of the Yellow Breeches has been added, is more than adequte to the purposes of the works; and has besides the uncommon advantage of being unaffected by ice or back water. An inexhaustible bank of mountain ore of the best quality for bar iron, is found on the estate, two miles from the furnace, and limestone ore may be had in a situation equally convenient. The wood land and meadow are amply sufficient for the supply of the works, which are advantageously situate as respects a market, being but seventy miles from Baltimore, five from Carlisle, and sixteen from the Susquehanna. This desirable property will remain for private sale till the first of April next, when it will be offered at vendue, if not sooner disposed of. For terms, apply to the subscribers, either at Carlisle or Philadelphia.

LOUISVILLE HOTEL.

THIS new and splendid establishment, situated on Main street, has been leased of the Louisville Hotel Company by the subscribers, for a term of years, and they feel no hesitation in saying that the entire arrangement of this Hotel, for extent of accommodation, elegance, and comfort, are not surpassed by any Hotel in the United States. Its location is pleasant and airy, and but a few moments' walk from the steam boats. The house contains nearly 200 apartments, most of which have fire places; and has a private entrance, leading to thirty suits of rooms, expressly arranged for the accommodation of families—has also seventy single lodging rooms. The establishment is furnished in the best modern style, and the Wines and Liquors have been selected with great care from the most celebrated vaults in New York and Boston. The proprietors, grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed on the different establishments they have been connected with in the eastern cities, hope, by their experience and personal attention, to gain for this Hotel a reputation equal to any in America. The Hotel was opened for the reception of transient and permanent boarders on the 1st of December.

FAIRBANK'S PLATFORM SCALES.

THESE scales are constructed upon an improved principle; are fitted up with great care by the manufacturers, and warranted to weigh with accuracy from half a pound to 12,000. Being placed in, and forming part of, the floor, the process of weighing is performed with ease and facility, while the space they occupy may be improved as a passage way or for other purposes.

The construction of these scales is such that they are little liable to derangement of wear, and their perfect operation will be guaranteed for any reasonable length of time.

The usual objection, that a new method of weighing cannot be safely entrusted to unskilful hands, is obviated by the use of the improved BALANCE, concerning which are the following remarks in the Journal of the Franklin Institute, of the state of Pennsylvania, for the promotion of the Mechanic Arts, for June, 1833. (Edited by Thos. P. Jones, M. D., late Superintendent of the Patent Office, at Washington, Professor of Mechanics in the Franklin Institute, &c.

"The Messrs. Fairbanks, some time since, obtained a patent for a Platform Weighing Machine, and this mode of adjuating and graduating the Beam of the Balance, and the weights, was devised by them with a view to its employment with the before mentioned machine. We have had an opportunity of examining one of their balances, and have been much pleased with it: this examination, however, was not necessary to the conviction that it possesses a just claim to the character of a real improvement, the whole arrangement being so simple as to enable any person to perceive that it is well adapted to the purpose contemplated, that of facilitating the business of weighing, and more especially of heavy articles."

The subscriber, as Agent, will receive orders for the above Scales, which will be made in this city to order. They can be seen at his Warehouse, No. 84, Front street.

DOCTOR ROBERT'S

☞ WELCH MEDICAMENTUM ☜

FOR the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Dysentery, Headach, Loss of Appetite, Flatulence, Hypochondria, Hysterics, Dropsical Complaints, and Heartburn, It also prevents all Bilious disorders, and removes habitual Costiveness, Asthma, Strangury, Gravel, Rheumatism, Gout, and Impurities of the Blood.

A person who uses this Medicamentum will not require the use of the lancet, or any means of the healing art. It restores and revives the animal spirits, invigorates the system, removes nervous tremors, obtunds rheumatic and anthritic pains, and prevents their return. It cleanses the stomach of all morbid humors, which cause indigestion, acidities, headach, and lowness of spirits; cures all bilious disorders, and all cholics of the stomach and bowels, almost immediately; inspires cheerfulness; gives comfort to the dropsical; takes away palpitation of the heart; gives circulation to the blood; restores bloom to the sallow or sickly cheek, and plumpness to the meagre habit; purges without pain, and banishes all cause of fever of every kind. It acts on the stomach, that great reservoir of the human system, a diseased state of which causes all diseases. No alteration in the usual habits of life is required, but the abstaining from distilled ardent spirits.

CERTIFICATE,

From Rev. Derick Lansing, D. D., Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Utica.

UTICA, Jan. 6, 1830.

To Dr. Hitchcock.—Dear Sir: I have always been one of the number of those who have placed little confidence in nostrums or specifics, and for this reason, although I saw your advertisement of the Welch Medicamentum, I could not bring my mind to consent to use it. My sufferings, from indigestion, during the past summer, were so severe, as materially to affect my comfort, and my capacity for usefulness. I have reason to thank you, sir, that, on hearing of the state of my health, you kindly sent me your Medicamentum. I have taken it faithfully, and with entire success. I have not been visited with one of those turns of distress, which before were weekly periodical, since I began to take your valuable medicine. Could I receive the same relief which I have hitherto experienced, on condition of taking it for life, I should cheerfully comply with such condition. Your's, very truly, D. C. LANSING.

ANTI DYSPEPTIC ELIXER.

ONE of the most agreeable and efficacious Medicines ever discovered for the permanent cure of those chronic states of derangement of the stomach, constituting that miserable disease called Dyspepsia.

The basis of this Elixer s vegetables, and perfectly innocent in its operation; it destroys that sour state of the stomach, the instant it is taken, and stops the morbid secretion, by giving strength to the muscular fibre of that important organ, by which means the peristaltic motion of the intestines is increased, and the costiveness obviated; a new action is given to the system, which puts an end to a train of distressing nervous sensations.

Another form of the disease in which the Elixer is admirably calculated to relieve, is the decline of fever, where the stomach will not bear the ordinary strengthening medicines indicated in such cases, it has the surprising effect of giving vigor, and restoring the natural secretions of the body, without increasing the febrile state. Not the least danger is to be apprehended from exposure to cold, while under the use of this medicine, nor will it interrupt necessary employment of the patient a single hour.

☞ A number of cases of cures performed by the Anti-Dyspeptic Elixer in the vicinity of Pittsburgh can be given.

COMPOUND SYRUP OF LIVERWORT,

A SAFE and Valuable Medicine for Coughs, Spitting of Blood, Consumption, and Liver Complaints.

Most of the medicines made use of for the above diseases are of a stimulating nature, composed generally of Resins and Balsams, in alcoholic solutions, which, although sometimes giving temporary relief, in almost every instance where they are freely used, aggravate the disease, and reduce the strength of the patient.

This article possesses superior advantages over these preparations, its action being of a tonic, invigorating and strengthening nature, thus overcoming the disease by promoting expectoration, and gradually increasing the strength of the patient, and thus, without being attended with any unpleasant effects: it also agrees with the stomach, in a cases, and is a pleasant medicine to take.
